Michael J. Lawlor was born in Clarke's Beach on July 28th, 1916. He was the third child born to parents Mary and Edward Lawlor.

Michael enlisted in the army on September 8th, of 1940, about a year after the Second World War began. Michael was 25 years old at the time of his enlistment. He became a member of the Royal Newfoundland Artillery. Michael left Clarke's Beach on a boat and spent the remainder of the war fighting as a gunner overseas.

During his time in the Second World War, Michael was a member of the 59th (Newfoundland) Heavy Regiment. The 59th Heavy Regiment was very important to Canada's history in WW2 because they fought alongside Canadian forces in Normandy to liberate France, Belgium, and the Netherlands.

In France on July 17th, 1944, when he was 29 years old, Michael received the British Empire Medal for Galant Conduct in the line of duty at Norry-en-Bessin, France. His name appeared in the London Gazette on Tuesday, 12th. December 1944, along with another Gunner from Newfoundland, John Maloney.

The London Gazette of that day reads as follows:

*' The KING has been graciously pleased to approve the award of the British Empire Medal (Military Division), in recognition of gallant conduct in carrying out hazardous work in a very brave manner, to the undermentioned: —
No. 971244 Gunner Michael Lawlor, Royal Regiment of Artillery (Conception Bay, Newfoundland).'*

It is interesting to note that according to records that during WW2 1236 British Empire Medals (BEM) were awarded. Of this number only 34 were awarded for Gallantry. Michael Lawlor's medal was one of this 34.

After his service in the war, Michael returned to Newfoundland. In 1946, Michael married Kathleen (Costello)
