Royal Air Force

Service No. 789883

World War II

Born: Nov 1920

Died: 30 Apr 1999

Place of Birth: Port Rexton, Trinity, Newfoundland

Parents: John and Addie (nee Hedges)
Ploughman

Although born in Port Rexton, Reuben first appears in the 1921 census as a nine (9) month old living in Bay Roberts.

Presumably, his father, John, a school teacher by profession had secured a job in the area and moved here with his young family.

By 1935, the family had moved to an area of the town known as Coley's Point. By this time, the family had grown to include seven (7) children: Reuben 15, James "Gerald" 13, R. Vernon 12, Gerturde and Winnifred 10, Jack 5, and Howard 2. John's mother Mary Ploughman 74 was also part of the household.

Reuben, the eldest, followed in his father's example of service and enlisted in the war effort of World War II when he joined the RAF (Royal Air Force). Two of his brothers, Ronald Vernon and James Gerald would also enlist in service.

Reuben took leave from his job with the Hudson Bay Company to enlist in the RAF. In fact, he worked with HBC for some forty (40) years from 1939 – 1979.

Reuben authored a book about his work experiences with the Company entitled "The Last of the Great Fur Traders."

"I worked for the Hudson's Bay Company for close to forty years, having gone North on the tall ships, a three-masted schooner in 1939. I came South by modern jet. If I remember correctly, I think the pilot's name was Julie Caesar, so it was a long time ago."

Following release from service, Reuben would marry Lily Bambrick and together they would make a life in North Bay, Ontario. They would raise five (5) children of record.

Reuben would pass away in 1999 in North Bay, Ontario at the age of 79. He was cremated, and his ashes interred at the Saint John's Anglican Cemetery in North Bay.
