

Walter Snow

The Royal Newfoundland Regiment

Regimental No. 2060

World War I

Born: 29 September 1898

Died: 05 March 1981

Walter was born in Bay Roberts to parents Henry and Susie Snow in 1897 or 1898. Walter's dad, Henry remarried a lady named Ellen following the death of his first wife.

On January 6th, 1916, at 18 Walter enlisted in the First Newfoundland Regiment (the regiment had not received the title "Royal" yet).

He cleared the necessary paperwork and examinations and was determined fit for service. He was accepted as Pte. Snow, posted to the 2nd. Battalion of the Regiment and provided the service No. 2060.

Interestingly on his enlistment papers, he gives his occupation as coachman. For those who may not know, like this researcher, what a coachman was, it is a man whose business it is to drive a coach or carriage, a horse-drawn vehicle designed for the conveyance of passengers. A coachman has also been called a coachee, coachy or whip).

His term of service for King and Country would last two (2) years and two hundred forty-three (243) days in total, from 1916 – 1918.

Walter served in France and Belgium and was at the battle of Cambrai in Northern France. The 17-day offensive commenced on 20 November and ended on 06 December 1917.

In August 1917, while involved in fighting near or in a small town called Le Treport, Walter was exposed to poison gas. As a result, he was admitted to the Second Canadian General Hospital on September 1st, 1917, and was reported to be "suffering from severe gas poisoning"

He recovered and was sent back to the fighting but was back in hospital on November 27th, 1917, suffering from a gunshot wound to his left arm. He was invalided to England and admitted to the Fourth London General Hospital where the diagnosis was "a slight GSW to upper left arm". This was not entirely accurate and upon later inspection, it was found that the bullet had passed through the arm nicking the brachial artery of the arm reducing blood flow and damaging both the ulna bone of the lower arm and the bicep muscle of the upper arm. It would mean the end of service for Walter who after some convalescence was examined, declared disabled and medically unfit to return to service.

Pte Snow's medical report regarding discharge was completed at the Hazeley Down Camp near Winchester, England. It provides the date of "disability" as 20th

He was repatriated to Newfoundland and officially discharged from service on the 5th of September 1918.

Once out of the service, Walter becomes difficult to locate in any Newfoundland official documentation but is found in the 1940 US Federal census living and working in Lynn, Essex County, Massachusetts. He is widowed, his first wife, Ellen, having passed away in 1933. He is a single parent with five (5) boys, William (18), Harry (16), Walter jr. (15), Elmer (13) and Arthur (11). Living in the home is Katherine Clarke (21), who is working as housekeeper. Katherine would later become Walter's second wife.

Walter would pass away 1981 at 82 in Lynn, Mass and he is buried in the Pine Grove Cemetery there.

The Rooms at St. John's have a complete copy of the service record for Pte. Walter Snow consisting of some 121 pages on file and is accessible online.
